TO THE TRADE:—

We have the pleasure of presenting herewith our Catalogue and revised Price List on all kinds of Cornices. Reserving the best selling of our old patterns, we have added as many more new ones, making our line the most complete now in the market.

We take the opportunity of calling your special attention to our Patent Extension Cornices and what we say regarding them, in this List, preceding the cuts of same.

We shall continue to make the best quality of work, and have endeavored to not only get up patterns that we can sell ourselves, but that will have ready sale by our customers to the retail trade.

Thanking our customers for their patronage during the past, we hope to receive a continuance of the same; and to those who heretofore have not bought of us, we would most respectfully ask for a trial order, feeling sure that it will lead to a steady trade with us.

Yours Truly,

PATENT EXTENSION CORNICES.

PATENTED MAY 3, 1881.

To those of our customers who have used our Patent Extension Cornices nothing need be said. To those who have not, we would wish to mention the following facts as to their merits :—

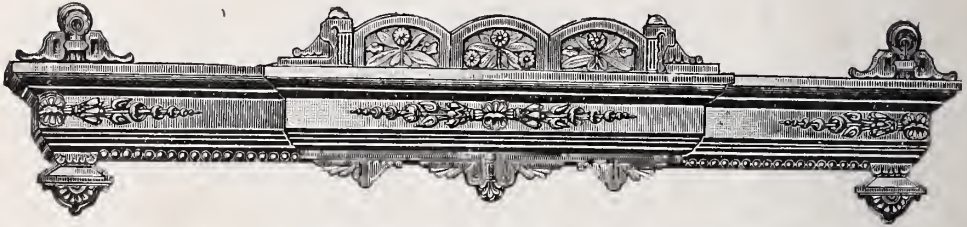

This Cornice is composed of two pieces of molding, ingeniously contrived to slide with ease upon extension strips at back of molding, and these strips are so fastened to the arms of the Cornice that they work independent of the third piece of molding, the center part, as shown in cuts, following, thus obviating the objection of sagging when extended, as our Cornice will positively hold its line when extended to full length. It is automatic and can be adjusted, without trouble, to fit any window from three and one-half feet to five feet in width. The center piece is not simply a center to make up the Cornice, but acts also as a handsome ornament to the Cornice. It is strong and durable and is a very economical cornice, as it can be easily removed from one room or dwelling to another, and adjusted to its new position without expense. In getting up this Cornice, we have aimed to combine all the merits of other extension Cornices, and adding several new improvements we claim ours to be the most Improved Extension Cornice in the market. In regard to the quality and finish they are A No. 1, and are not surpassed in elegance of design.

GILT EXTENSION CORNICES.

In getting up a Gilt Extension Cornice we have met a want long felt for a gilt cornice, something better than one of the common plain gilt molding, and yet not so expensive as a Gold Cornice. The following patterns are very handsome and designs entirely new, and we believe the only Gilt Extension Cornice ornamented in the market
